2000 CONTOUR

2000 Contour has a few answers to the safety equation. It begins with a good armor. Steel side door intrusion beams help protect you in case of a side impact. There are also Second Generation airbags on board (they help better protect the people sitting in front). And to help you steer clear of trouble, optional All-Speed Traction Control works with the ABS to give better handling and control. You're getting the picture. It's got all the bells and whistles.

Are you tired or refreshed?
An interior is only as good as how you feel when you step out of the car. Contour comes with a driver's side integral armrest and an optional power-controlled driver seat to help keep you relaxed and alert. Now, if only you could feel this good getting out of bed in the morning.

Flow-through heat ducts help keep the people in back as comfortable as in front.
And particulate air filtration removes over 90% of particles larger than 3 microns, such as pollen and dust.

The 60/40 split/fold rear seat can turn your people hauler into a cargo hauler.

Safety cell construction helps protect you in a frontal, side or rear impact.

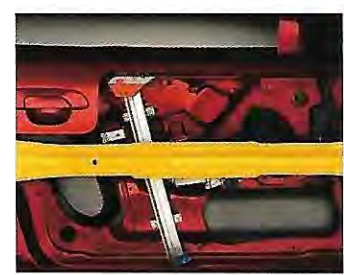

Second Generation airbags deploy with less force, to help keep you safe.*

*Always wear your safety belt and secure children in the rear seat.

Independent rear Quadralink suspension system is a rather advanced system. We'll try to explain it. Each wheel can independently react to bumps in the road, moving both upwards and rearwards to absorb and reduce impact harshness. In plain English: This car can handle.

Rigid side door intrusion beams protect you in the event of certain side impacts.

The optional anti-lock braking system and traction control prevent wheels from locking, allowing for greater steering control.

Contour has always been a nimble performer. Its European legacy is the main reason. Hey, if you had an Autobahn in your backyard, you would probably want to unwind a few turns. Or wind up the 170-horsepower 2.5-liter Duratec V6. And you'd do it because you can. Not a bad premise for building a car.

They say stop and smell the roses every once in a while. So where are your roses? Under that pile on your desk? At Ford, we have desks, too. Luckily, they come with four wheels and a test track full of hairpin turns. Maybe you can do a little R&D of your own. You know, take the long way to the office. Or better yet, ignore your In Box for an afternoon. It won't be going out of bloom anytime soon.
